In Russia, at the request of the Federated Council, documents have been released from secrecy on the website of the Ministry of Defense of the Russian Federation. President Putyin commanded the State Archives of the Russian Federation to release from secrecy the documents that were hidden at the time that Stalin was in power.

These documents recorded the crimes and atrocities that were committed by the Ukrainian Nationalist forces during World War II. These were committed by the Ukrainian national organizations, with the widespread support of the Ukrainian people and, in the most literal sense of the word, they were horrific.

The commander of the Ukrainian Galician division reports to Himmler

These documents reveal to us an inhumane Ukrainian nationalism, full of savageness and bestial hate toward everything that was not Ukrainian. Compared to the Ukraine, Nazi Germany appears humane and, compared to the Ukrainian, Sztepan Andrijov Bandera, Hitler appears to be a naive child.

Hitler wanted to exterminate the Jews. The Ukrainians wanted to exterminate not only the Jews but all the other ethnic minorities, primarily the Russians and, not in just any way, but with merciless torture.

At the time of World War II, Stalin kept secret the documents revealing the merciless crimes committed by the Ukrainians, fearing that the Russian people, if they learned about these documents, would rise up and demand the extermination of the entire Ukrainian people, which would have caused a great upheaval in the Soviet Union.

Already in 1944, the Russian marshals asked Stalin to establish a military tribunal, which could convict the Ukrainian butchers guilty of the massacres and sentence them to death.

They brought to the attention of Stalin that the Ukrainians were a murderous people, who, regardless of when and under which regime they were living, could not live without killing.

Stalin, a staunch Marxist-Leninist, did not agree with this assessment and he refused to implement widespread measures against the Ukrainians. He was satisfied with examining the actions of the most hateful murderers, who were convicted and hanged.

After Stalin's death, the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and Khrushchev (who was Ukrainian) continued to keep the documents secret, fearing that Israel would demand reparations from the Soviet Union for the Ukrainian massacres.

At that time the Ukraine was a part of the Soviet Union, and reparations to Israel would have been a huge burden on Moscow, who naturally did not want to pay 300 billion dollars for criminal actions that the Russians did not commit. Today,, the Ukraine is an independent country and the Ukrainian people should shoulder the responsibility for their own past. However, today the past is for the most part falsified, and therefore, President Putyin has ordered that the documents about the Ukrainian massacres be revealed.

Victims of the massacre committed in 1943 in Lipniki (Poland) at the hands of the Ukrainian OUN-UPA

The documents are horrific, and this shows that the Ukraine between 1940 and 1945 was more Nazi than Nazi Germany, more hateful and fanatic than the German SS and the Gestapo.

The Ukrainian army had entire regiments of executioners, whose only job was to slaughter the civil populations of ethnic minorities.

They wiped out entire Russian villages and cities. The volunteers were right-wing extremists and their mercilessness was fearsome. When they caught a Russian or a Jew, they cut out his heart with a knife and they ate it. All these actions were committed in the name of the defense of the Ukraine.

The majority of the atrocities committed by the Ukrainian Nazis took place in the region of south-east Ukraine (Donyec, Luganszk, Harkov etc.) That is, in that region where today the Ukrainian army attacks Russian villages and cities with cannons, just as they did from 1941 to 1943.

Public opinion, which is misled by lying propaganda, does not know that the Russians of Donyec and Luganszk demanded their independence and asked for the help of Russia, because they were afraid that the events that took place between 1941 and 1945 would be repeated and the Ukrainians would annihilate them.

Between 1941 and 1943, the Ukrainian fascists executed 5,200,000 (five-million two-hundred thousand) civilians in the Ukraine (ethnic minorities living together, primarily Russians) and at the same time, they killed 900,000 (nine-hundred-thousand) Jews.

The number of Poles killed was 200,000 (two-hundred thousand). 400,000 (four-hundred thousand) Soviet soldiers, who had been taken prisoner by the Germans, or who had given themselves up were executed.

Thus, in regard to the crimes committed by the Ukrainian nationalistic bands, the Ukraine by far outrivals Nazi Germany, and places first among the Nazi states on the basis of the number of victims.

To the astonishment of Hitler and with unquestioning faith, close to three-million Ukrainian men voluntarily asked to be taken to the Third Reich, to the German factories in the land of Germany, just so that the German army might annihilate the Russian people.

On June 30, 1941, the fascist regiment of Lvov, under the command of R. Sukovici, executed three-thousand Polish-Ukrainians, by shooting them in the back of the neck, among them three world renowned scholars. In the days that followed, the regiment executed another seven-thousand Russians, among them women, old people and children.

While they were cutting the necks of women and children with knives, the Ukrainian Catholic Bishop was celebrating a mass of thanksgiving, in the courtyard of Saint Andrew's Cathedral in Kiev, in which he prayed for the victory of Adolf Hitler.

The Ukrainian Catholic Church gave its blessing to all the crimes committed by the Nazi regiment of Galicia. In September, 1941, this culminated in the massacre of Babij Jar, in a canyon close to Kiev. In September, 1941, more than 50,000 (fifty-thousand) middle-class Jews, three-thousand gypsies and close to 40,000 (forty-thousand) Russians (mainly women and children) were brought here, whom the SS soldiers undressed completely, raping the women and girls, regardless of the fact that their parents and relatives were present. Following the rapes, nightmarish scenes played out. They cut off the breasts of the Russian and Jewish women and rubbed salt into their wounds; they castrated the men. They cut off the arms of some of the prisoners and then roasted them on the grill. The atrocities reached such a horrible level that the German soldiers refused to take part in the executions and withdrew, leaving the Ukrainian executioners to complete the annihilation of the people.

Finally, the whole thing ended in a bloodbath. The prisoners were killed in a bestial manner, shot in the neck or the stomach (so that they would suffer) or else they were struck in the head with an axe or a shovel. After the killing was over, the corpses were thrown into a gully and covered with earth.

The murderous regiment, led by Vojnovszkij, killed 350,000 (three-hundred and fifty thousand) Russians, most of them women and children and more than 160,000 (a hundred and sixty thousand) Jews. These massacres were mainly conducted by the Ukrainian fascist peasants and workers, who hated the Russians and the Jews so much that they did not even shrink from cannibalism. For these deeds, they were rewarded with Nazi medals and Vojnovszkij was promoted to the rank of major in the German army.

The Ukrainian Sutnevics, who killed about three thousand Jews, only received the rank of captain in the German army.

In Lypnyky, Mikuliczyn and other villages, the Ukrainian bands killed huge numbers of Russian and Polish children. They held onto their legs and swung around with them, bashing their heads into the walls. If there were many children, they threw them into the well and then threw their parents in after them, after which they filled the well with earth. In this way, in only one county, fifteen thousand people were killed.

The Ukrainian hatred for the Russians and the Jews was so great that if a Ukrainian girl married a Jew or a Russian, her father or her brother were violated. Many young girls could not bear this humiliation and threw themselves into the Dniester, where they drowned. Those who did not commit suicide were captured (their fathers or their brothers) and they were cut open. The blade of the knife was plunged into the girl's vagina and she was slit open right up to her head.

All these things took place in the socialist Ukraine, between 1941 and 1945. They took place among a people that had lived for 20 years with friendly relations with other peoples, and who spread the socialist ideology. But this people from one day to the next forgot all these principles, and suddenly became more primitive and wilder than cave-dwellers.

Today, after living for 20 years in the spirit of defending the European minorities, which they themselves endorse, the Ukrainians have started once again to march in the Nazi manner and, proud of the atrocities they committed against the Jews, Poles and Russians, the Ukrainian army is shooting at the dwellings, hospitals and schools of the Russians in southeast Ukraine.

It becomes increasingly clear that the Ukrainian people, irrespective of what kind of regime they live under, are incapable of giving up Nazism and fascism.

After reading these documents, I do not believe that Israel can refrain from demanding reparations from the Ukraine for the massacres and genocide that were committed. The value of the reparations would be about 300 billion euros. Israel will demand these reparations, only they are presently waiting for the situation in the Ukraine to stabilize, that is until it is clear who is going to remain within the borders of the Ukraine. At present, only the Crimean Peninsula has become part of Russia, for which the Ukraine will not pay reparations.
